Weekly Update

Thank you for joining us at chapel on Friday. We enjoyed sharing our message of perseverance with you all.

We have plenty to keep us occupied this week in amongst our general classroom learning.

On Tuesday students will be participating in a variety of science experiments to celebrate Science Week. Stay tuned for photos on Seesaw and the school newsletter. On Thursday afternoon we will be visiting the Hostel for our Service Learning project this term.

Concert preparations are in full swing, with more information to follow very soon. Students have been notified if they are in the dance or drama.

Congratulations George

We congratulate George on receiving the Ace Action award at our week 2 Assembly. George received this award in recognition of outstanding achievements for being principled and courageous when training and racing and for being open-minded with other team members during Pedal Prix. He was reflective and a thinker when creating bird boxes for the school. Well done George!

Congratulations Will

Congratulations Will on receiving our classroom award last week. He received this award for being an inquirer by approaching our current unit of inquiry on Ecosystems with enthusiasm. He is focusing hard to broaden his knowledge of different plant and animal adaptations by working collaboratively with his peers.
